"Election a Certainty."

'In the matter of strength we can muster, and have mustered, we will have all the votes of Western Democrats and enough from the South to make De Armond's election a certainty. Even Mr. Williams' friends are beginning to realize that the opposition to him is a serious matter. We are in this fight to stay, De Armond is in it to stay, and we are all in it to win. I think there is hardly any doubt that we will win, and have a new leader."

Representative Bowers of Mississippi, one of Mr. Willams' stanchest supporters, said today:

"Well, this will line the fight up on definite lines. Mr. Williams' friends have no fear of his being beaten."

Mr. De Armond has been in Congress sixteen years, and in that time has established a reputation as a parliamentarian and a debater.

First Talk With Thaw.

A,-As best I can. On August 4 I ON TEXAS RIOT went to the Tombs with a letter from Mr. Hartridge. I went up to Mr. Thaw's cell. I told him I was Dr. Evans and cell. I told him I was Dr. Evans and had been directed by his lawyers to see him. He gave me his hand and passed the time of day. He asked me if I would sit down on his bunk or cot. He looked at me with that stare of his eye, showing much more white than a man would in a normal condition. And in his agitated manner he offered me a seat beside him. He looked into my eyes, saying: "You have different eyes than Dr. Hamilton. Your eyes show you are a sane man. His eyes suggest insanity!" I did not discuss that proposition, I assured him that I had come there to talk in a friendly way and not make a physical examination. He said "All right, I'm willing to talk." I said. "How do you feel?" He said. "I mall right." He then said. "I have been subjected to a conspiracy." "What is that?" I asked. "Through Delanied." he answered. "Black, Olcott. Gruber, and Bouynge are in a conspiracy with Jerome to railroad me to an asylum. They want to declare me insane. It is all rot. They do not want me to come to a trial, where I may be vindicated; where I may tell the court and a fury all there is to tell." I asked if he thought that this law firm would be at the head of such a conspiracy, and he said: "White's friends have got Delafield, Black, Olcott & Co. to prevent me from showing to a jury and the world the infamous conduct of Stanford White." His wife and mother came to the door of the cell. I said I would retire in their favor and see him again. "If you want to talk to me a little longer, I will see you right away," he said. He kissed his mother and asked her and his wife to go to another part of the building, and we resumed our conversation, he told me about Stanford White and the women he had ruined. He said: "Stanford White has raped, drugged, poisoned, and seduced a great number of young women—innocent women not yet in he prime of life; women innocent in mind and body, and the whole scheme of the lawyers was to keep this away from the public; that a conspiracy existed in the district attorney's office to keep the details had been directed by his lawyers to see him.
